

How to Build Your Enclosure

All outside cat enclosures by The Cat's Den are designed to prevent escape, while keeping your cat safe and healthy. Fence systems sometimes allow an intrepid cat a means to escape, either through a gap at the bottom of the fence or over the top of the fence. Creating a perfect closed system, the Cat's Den stays away from wooden structures to make the enclosure more attractive. We found that by using a thicker wire for the mesh, the enclosure would be able to support itself. Only the larger enclosures will need a little bit of support. The Cat's Den uses galvanized mesh that has a 2" x 2" mesh. By using galvanized mesh, the rust factor is eliminated. We also use cedar wood for the flooring and shelves, to eliminate rotting. The Cat's Den is a long term investment that will not need any maintenance to remain a perfect place for your cat for many years.

The tunnels are designed in a way so that they can be attached to any part of the enclosure very easily, creating a fully enclosed cat run. More robust than an open top fence system resting on the ground, the shape of the tunnel is built to withstand a great deal of pressure on it. For example, if a dog jumps on a tunnel, it will support the weight. Also, the peak of the roof will assist in allowing the snow to fall off the run. They were designed 12" wide as to allow two cats to pass each other with perfect ease.

The Cat's Den was not only designed to look attractive in your yard but also to go with you when you move. With the clip remover, the enclosure can be easily disassembled, moved to a new location and re-assembled using new clips. This allows any enclosure to be added onto with ease. Allowing for any budget, the enclosure will be able to grow with your garden and surroundings.

Our pre-designed do-it-yourself Enclosure Kits were created using some of our more popular design ideas, and are pre-boxed and ready to be shipped. We've included step by step instructions and all the hardware you need. If you require any assistance, we're only a phone call or email away.

A great way to make your own Cat's Den outdoor cat enclosure is by choosing the pieces that would suit your area. All pieces do connect to each other with ease. Just choose the number of pieces that you will need to build your personal Cat's Den cat play pen.

All custom kit order outdoor cat enclosure kits will come with the appropriate hardware, instructions and pliers.
